TRINITY WINS FIRST BASKETBALL GAME.

Connecticut Aggies Fall Before
Smooth Running Trinity Team—
Score 26-13.

In a game featured by the airtight defense of the Trinity guards, the Blue and Gold basketball team easily won the first game of the season from the Connecticut Aggies in the Hartford High School gym last Friday night, 26 to 13. The Trinity team showed up best during the first half, playing the visitors off their feet, and piling up twenty points to the visitors' six. During the second half, the Aggie defense tightened considerably, and the Trinity team did not score as easily as in the first period. Bolles with six goals from the floor and Canner with three field goals and six fouls were tied with twelve points each as the high Trinity scorers. Nordlund accounted for the other two points by a pretty field goal near the end of the second half. Gronwoldt was the only Aggie player to penetrate the Trinity defense, and the only field goal scored by the Blue and White was due to his work. Their other points came as the result of foul shooting by Sickler and Alexander.

The lineups and summary:

Trinity		Conn. Aggies
Bolles	LF	Alexander
Canner	RF	Putnam (Capt.)
Mills	C	Gronwoldt
Nordlund	LG	Lord
Tansill (Capt.)	RG	Sickler

Field goals, Bolles 6, Canner 3, Nordlund 1, Gronwoldt 1; goals from fouls, Sickler 8, Canner 6, Alexander 3; substitutions, Sinclair for Bolles, Bolles for Sinclair, Sinclair for Bolles, Mohnkern for Sinclair, Keating for Mohnkern; referee, Brennan; scorer, Reynolds; timers, Berkman and James.

ATHLETIC RELATIONS BROKEN WITH WESLEYAN

Interesting Indian Bones Given Biological Museum by Ansel Cook.

The biological museum is the recipient of valuable specimens of the leg and arm bones of an American Indian. The bones were found near South Windsor, Conn., on the site of an ancient Indian cemetery, by C. W. Vibbert, on April 4, 1920. Mr. Vibbert discovered the bones on the bank of the Connecticut River following a freshet. The tibia is of particular value because it plainly shows evidences of a repaired fracture.

Patronesses for Hop.

It has been announced that the following will be patronesses at the Sophomore Hop: Mrs. R. B. Ogilby, Mrs. S. L. Galpin, Mrs. H. A. Perkins, Mrs. C. G. Bill, Mrs. F. T. Simpson, Mrs. Andrew Gates, Mrs. W. A. Sanborn, Mrs. E. J. Lake, Mrs. C. L. F. Robinson, Mrs. R. A. Wadsworth, Mrs. G. F. Ensign, and Mrs. E. D. Redfield.

The Hop will be held at Alumni Hall Friday evening, December 17. Dancing will start at 9 p. m. and last until 2 a. m., and Rapp's orchestra of New Haven will furnish the music. The programs are now ready and may be had from members of the committee.

TRINITY STUDENT BODY UNANIMOUS IN TAKING ACTION AFTER SENATE FAILS TO AGREE.

"Argus" Statement Repudiated by Senate.

BREAK A RESULT OF WESLEYAN DISPLEASURE AT FOOTBALL GAME AT MIDDLETOWN ON OCTOBER 9.

Communication Sent to Wesleyan.

We, the student body of Trinity College, feel that it is not advisable that we continue athletic relations with Wesleyan University under existing circumstances.

(By the Managing Editor.)

Athletic relations with Wesleyan, which have been strained since the football game at Middletown on October 9, were broken for an indefinite period by a unanimous vote of the Trinity student body at a mass meeting Wednesday.

Wesleyan alleged that the Trinity team showed poor sportmanship in the football game, and the matter of severing relations was put in the hands of the Wesleyan alumni committee. After several meetings, at which no definite conclusion was reached, a joint meeting of Trinity and Wesleyan committees was held, and this session put the matter in the hands of the two student bodies. Alumni Secretary Hudson went to Middletown and explained Trinity's attitude to the Wesleyan senate. Last Tuesday night the Wesleyan undergraduate governing body met with the Trinity senate at Trinity, and after considerable discussion it was realized that no amicable solution was possible. The mass meeting and the break by Trinity followed. Wesleyan has as yet taken no action on the matter.

GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM GETS MORE SPECIMENS.

Rocks from Transvaal, and New England, and Volcanic Dust from Alaska Added.

Several new gifts have recently been received by the college museum. One of these is a very fine crystal of corundum from the Transvaal, South Africa. This crystal measures five inches in length and is hexagonal in shape. Corundum has the same chemical composition as the ruby, and is next to the diamond in hardness. A number of rocks from localities in New England have also been received.

James H. Ehlers, '14, has sent samples of the volcanic dust which fell at the time of the eruption of Mt. Katinai, Alaska, in 1912. Seven distinct layers fell. They are easily distinguished by their varied colors.

At Meeting of Political Science Academy.

President Ogilby and Professor Humphrey were among the 650 present at the annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science held in New York last Thursday. "American Foreign Trade Relations" was the topic of the meeting, and among the speakers were J. J. Jusserand, Ambassador from France, Thomas W. Lamont, Nicholas Longworth of the Ways and Means Committee, and Edward N. Dingley, son of the author of the Dingley Tariff bill.

The first evidence of dissatisfaction on the part of Wesleyan was in the "Wesleyan Alumnus", which, in its issue following the game, took up the matter of future relations with Trinity through a series of communications from alumni, all of whom criticized the Trinity team, although some added criticism of the officials, and one writer admitted his inability to talk coherently on the subject of relations between the two colleges.

Derogatory Statements Repudiated.

After Hudson's visit to Wesleyan, there were numerous articles in the papers of the state, alleging that Hudson had apologized for the "muck-r spirit" of Trinity, and the Wesleyan "Argus", the undergraduate paper, alleged that Hudson had asked in behalf of Trinity "another chance to prove worthy of a place on our schedule." All these reports were repudiated by the Wesleyan senate at its joint meeting with the Trinity senate.

The senate meeting was the last effort on Trinity's part to keep the spirit of friendly rivalry between the two colleges without sacrificing the self-respect of the college. The Trinity delegates went into the meeting with open minds, willing to do all in their power to prevent a break. Trinity's one point was the repudiation of newspaper allegations regarding Trinity spirit emanating from Wesleyan, and this was carried. The Wesleyan senate, on the other hand, came to the meeting determined on a

New York Alumni Greet Ogilby.

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING WELCOMES TRINITY'S NEW PRESIDENT
—URGED THAT NEW GYMNASIUM BE STARTED BY SPRING.

(Correspondence of THE TRIPOD.)

New York, December 7—Over 100 Trinity alumni from New York and New Jersey representing practically every class from 1861 to 1921, gathered in the Colonial room of the Hotel McAlpin tonight to greet President Ogilby. Robert S. Thorne, '85, presided at the dinner, and the others at the head table were President Ogilby, Colonel W. S. Cogswell, '61, the Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires, '01, W. E. Curtis, '75, W. R. Mowe, '70 and Philip J. McCook, '95.

After the dinner was over and the coffee and the cigars were served, Chairman Thorne started the speech making by welcoming President Ogilby to New York. He paid tribute to President Ogilby's training and ability, and then introduced him to the alumni. President Ogilby was received with stirring enthusiasm and a rousing "Trin." It was several minutes before he could speak.

President Ogilby expressed his pleasure at meeting the New York Alumni and at the sincerity and warmth of his greeting. He was going to talk to the alumni not so much as president, he said, but as their servant, for in the last analysis the college was theirs. They were his masters and to them he would give an account of stewardship, and on them he relied for help and counsel. He

THE RIGHT MOVE.

Much criticism has been expressed over the break in athletic relations between Trinity and Wesleyan. Those who followed the preceding events closely, predicted the outcome some time ago, and the cessation of all athletics between the two colleges has come at last. It is with regret that Trinity has taken the step which, it felt, was absolutely necessary. Those who think that the action was not justified may rest assured that the question was thoroughly discussed and carefully considered before anything definite was decided. It is the belief of the student body, in whose hands the matter was placed, that Trinity has made the right move.

GOOD WORK!

Friday night the basketball season opened, and the team gave evidence of having practiced hard and of having received excellent coaching. We congratulate the team and the coach on their fine start.

The cheering at the game was fair. The fact that it was not better may be due to the lack of room for spectators in the gymnasium. We would suggest that a certain part of the hall be definitely designated as the place for a cheering section, and that this section be reserved for the undergraduates.

Professor Edward F. Humphrey spoke on "The Economic Life of the Ancient Greeks" at an open meeting of the Charter Oak branch of the Delphian Society at the Young Women's Christian Association, Ann and Church Streets, on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30.

HARDING'S CABINET.

Trinity Students Express Choices for Holders of Portfolios in New Administration.

The straw vote for Harding's cabinet conducted last week by THE TRIPOD brought out a large vote at the various fraternity houses. The cabinet selection by the Trinity student body is unique in that not a single New Englander was considered likely to get a portfolio. General Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the Twenty-Sixth division, and an honorarious of Trinity was one of the candidates for secretary of war but was decisively beaten by General Wood. Discounting the two military men selected for the army and navy secretariats, two portfolios are awarded to the east, five to the middle west and one to the far west. The Trinity selections for the cabinet positions are:

Secretary of State:

Charles E. Hughes of New York.

Secretary of the Treasury:

Governor Lowden of Illinois.

Secretary of War:

General Leonard Wood.

Secretary of the Navy:

Admiral William S. Sims.

Attorney General:

BREAK WITH WESLEYAN.

break, and would not consider any compromise. Wesleyan suggested that the relations be severed for a definite period of years, but Trinity in breaking relations made no reference to resumption in the future.

The meeting held Wednesday was quiet and serious. Tilton, '20, president of the college senate, presided, and outlined the steps in the controversy. There was a short discussion as to whether the present college body could take action which would be binding on future generations, and as to whether social relations should be broken as well as athletic relations. Boyce, '20, moved that a statement breaking relations be sent to Wesleyan. Hicks, '21, seconded the motion and the motion was carried without a single voice being raised in dissent.

"Good Riddance", Davis, '99.

Trinity alumni in Hartford, when interviewed after the break were divided in their opinions. J. H. Kelso Davis, '99, was quoted as saying "Good riddance to bad rubbish." Corporation Counsel Walter S. Schutz, '94, declared that he was sorry relations had been broken, and his opinion was seconded by Major Frank L. Wilcox, '80. No statement has been issued at Wesleyan, except that the matter would be taken up this week.

Wesleyan broke relations with Trinity in 1916, following the season in which the Trinity team, including George Brickley, defeated Wesleyan on Trinity Field. The break at that time came because Trinity refused to follow Wesleyan's demands and bar freshmen from competition in varsity athletics. Relations were resumed soon after, and were in full swing in all sports, except football, in the spring of 1919. Since relations have been resumed Wesleyan has won all the contests with the exception of the baseball game on Memorial Day last spring, which went to a fourteen-inning tie. The football game which resulted in the break was won by Wesleyan, 20 to 0.

expected to plan, to suggest, to direct but he expected the alumni to put their shoulders to the wheel and co-operate. President Ogilby said the job was a big one, and sometimes the problems seemed overwhelming. But the problems made the job worth while and aroused the fighting spirit of a man. President Ogilby pleaded that at Trinity there should be more of the spirit of adventure; that even though we were not able to see the whole of the path clearly, we should have courage and faith in our cause and push forward in the belief that the way would be shown.

President Ogilby spoke of his work at the college during the summer and of the study he had made of the many things to be done. His inauguration had been an inspiration to him, and the letters and pledges of support from the alumni cheered his heart. President Ogilby stated that the first step to take was to get clearly in mind what the college stood for, its traditions, and the teachings it should give to those committed to its charge.

One of the points President Ogilby made was what shall Trinity's policy in education be? Shall Trinity compete with institutions like Harvard, Yale, Columbia in turning out specialists? Shall Trinity go in for law, medicine, engineering, etc.? It was clear to President Ogilby that Trinity should not. Trinity should train leaders, should lay the solid foundation on which to build further if a man desired. But no man could be a leader in his field without the foundation. Trinity, then, should remain a small college, not necessarily limited to her present number of students, but a small college as distinguished from a university. There was a distinct place in our country for the small college, with its close relationship of students and faculty, and student with student. The college life outside the classroom was an important part of the education. Trinity, then, should lay the groundwork, and in order that a student should receive a balanced course, there should be a system for controlling elective studies. In other words, the student should not be allowed to select his courses indiscriminately, as very few students are qualified to do so. Subjects should be grouped, and a reasonable amount of electives within a group permitted. For example, a student coming to Trinity desiring to prepare for medical school would be required to take the group of subjects planned by the college for this purpose. In the same manner, all other students would take some subject-group.

New Gymnasium in Spring.

President Ogilby closed his speech by saying that of course he had plans in mind for the physical needs of the college, and that the college must have more endowments and buildings. But he would not speak about these things tonight. One thing, however, he wanted by spring. He wanted to see a modern gymnasium started. This would give students and prospective students something to tell their friends about, something that would draw and enthuse men more than most anything else.

Chairman Thorne introduced Justice Philip J. McCook, '95, to speak for the Alumni. Justice McCook spoke of the college of his day, when he and Mayhew Wainwright were the only two men to enter from Hartford High School. Trinity, although well regarded in Hartford then, did not enjoy its present high position. He told of the undergraduate life of his day and the problems the college faced then, and traced the progress made since. He touched briefly on some of the needs of the college and said that any compact, homogeneous, intelligent body of men such as the Trinity alumni could get what they desired if they went after it with faith and energy. The office of President of Trinity College was a big hard job, but President Ogilby was big enough for the job and would lead us to the light.

NEW YORK ALUMNI MEET.

Rev. E. S. Carson, '02, greeted President Ogilby for the New Jersey alumni. Mr. Carson spoke of his love for Trinity, and the inspiration the college is to him in his work. He urged Trinity men to send their sons to Trinity, to urge their friends to go there. Mr. Carson had been a chaplain at one of the large state universities of the west, and he said that a small college is to be preferred every time. He asked the alumni to co-operate with President Ogilby, to be fellow servants of Trinity with him, and not to let the President carry the load alone.

Rev. Dr. E. M. Stone, 1901, of St. Thomas' Church, brought the congratulations and best wishes of the Church. He had a warm spot in his heart for Trinity, not only because the college had displayed such good judgment in conferring an honorary degree upon him, but also because of the long and distinguished career of the college, and its enviable position in church and state. He knew of no institution which had contributed so many or so able men to the Church, and all over the country graduates of the college were active and prominent laymen. In times like these the country needed such institutions as Trinity to preserve our ideals of Christian teaching and service to Church and State. Dr. Stone said that church people everywhere should get in back of Trinity and help her to enlarge the splendid service she has been rendering.

T. C. Hudson, Jr., the Alumni Secretary, told of the undergraduate activities of the college and how he aimed to co-ordinate them and to instill the right spirit and traditions so that the college would benefit. He also wanted to keep the alumni in touch with college affairs, and asked that they send him news items or changes of address. He urged that the alumni organize local associations where possible, and do what they could to send men to Trinity.

H. M. Lamberton, the football coach, spoke on athletics. He said that athletics were a necessary part of college training, and praised the fairness and the encouragement athletics at Trinity had received from President Ogilby and the Faculty. Mr. Lamberton regretted that the football season had not been successful, but said that the men were green and inexperienced, most of them being freshmen. He praised the freshmen for the work they had done and the spirit displayed. With the experience gained this fall and the new material likely to enter college, Mr. Lamberton predicted a successful football team for 1921. Mr. Lamberton urged the alumni to visit their preparatory schools and interest athletes in Trinity. There was no better advertisement than clean, successful athletics.
